

From: Briuc@aol.com
Subject: Re: Underwood War and the Stampers
Date: 13 June 2006 18:36:39 GMT+00:00
To: abulsme@abulsme.com

Hi again,

Thanks for the kind words about my Mom. I do miss her indeed. Anyway, I can tell you that there are tons of sites about the Underwood Stamper Fued, some of them quite thorough. There was one that you might like to take a look at because it is entitled the Stamper Family Project and may help you to find other Stampers. It's addy is <http://www.stampers.org.Kentucky/Carter/Underwood%20War.html>

Or you can just do a google search using the following search phrase : Underwood Stamper Feud Kentucky. The website noted above is the second listing but there are lots more to delve into. Have fun!

And yeah, isn't it a kick to find out about the relatives. All of our other lines were very respectable, staid farmers so I must admit that we always got a bit of a kick out of our crazy Underwoods. They were fun folk to try to track too as they had a habit of changing names, pretending to be dead and then resurfacing, etc (maybe because of all that horseflesh that seemed to "follow them home" <g>). If your Stamper line was even half soerrrr.....colorful... you'll have a fun hunt!

Enjoy.

Melanie

<<Thanks for getting back to me and I'm sorry to hear about your mom. :-)

If you do come across anything that seems to be of interest (especially from the Stamper side of things) I would definitely appreciate any pointers, but I wouldn't want you to go out of your way.

Over the summer I've had a bit of extra time and have spent some of it digging up old family stuff, mostly online, some from relatives. It can be a fascinating hunt sometimes. :-)

Thanks again for your quick answer. And yes, I think that old feud can be laid to rest. :-)>>