Samuel

I don't have any information. Are there birth certificates of Albert Donaghy that give his father's name? Also, there is one other piece of information on my grandfather Albert. He had a greenhouse next to their home on Chelwynde Avenue. (I have an old photo of it.) Also, while going through stuff I think I ran across a business card. If I find it, I'll scan it for you. It seems that he sold plants. I remember all this because the house I grew up in had a very small yard; supposedly my father chose it because he was tired of doing yard and plant work! Good luck in the research.

Jack

Subject: Albert's Father

On the Albert Donaghy page I currently have this note:

"There is nothing in the packet of material I have from Leslie May Donaghy or that I can find elsewhere (so far) that explicitly gives Albert Donaghy's father. However, there is a lot of information on James Donaghy but very little on James Donaghy's brothers. I have found census records for two Albert Donaghy's in Pennsylvania at the right time period. One appears to be a child of James Donaghy, of which there is tons of information in the family materials here. The other is a child of John Donaghy, which I believe is one of James' brothers, although I haven't yet posted any information I have on that generation. Given all of the above, I am going to make the reasonable assumption based on the information I have that James Donaghy is indeed Albert's father."

Do you have any information that would confirm that James is your Great Grandfather?

Given the fact that I have all sorts of info in what Leslie sent me about James, and not about any other Donaghy's of that generation, I think it is a more than reasonable assumption, but it would be nice if I had something that explicitly said that. :-)
